Dr. King often spoke about the inequities in the housing opportunities between whites and the minorities in this country. Unfortunately, Dr. King did not live to see the Fair Housing Act signed into law or see how fair housing in this country has led to a record number of minority homeowners. However, I do know that there is more to be done. As reported in the media yesterday, minorities are twice as likely as whites to get higher priced mortgages, and we must understand these disparities and work to eliminate them. Also, I am quite aware of the number of Americans who were displaced from their homes by Hurricane Katrina, and I know there is work to be done to get those families back into their homes. As the Presidents nominee for Assistant Secretary for Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, I have been given an opportunity few people before me have been given; that is, to ensure equal access to housing for all Americans. If I am confirmed, I promise to diligently and enthusiastically carry out the duties for which I have been nominated, because I cannot think of a greater honor than to serve this Administration as the chief enforcer of the Nations fair housing laws. As a little girl growing up in Pittsburgh, I could never imagine I would one day be sitting in a confirmation hearing before the U. S. Senate. This kind of personal journey is only possible in the United States,...
