General Accounting Office, 2002 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)53707198 Subject: Corporate governance -- United States. Excerpt: . . . whether current independence rules are adequate to protect the public interest; whether independence rules for auditors should be consistent and set by the government or private sector, or whether the status quo is acceptable; whether the current system of peer review is acceptable or whether the SEC should play a role that exercises more direct control or oversight of the accounting professions compliance with standards; and how the investigative enforcement functions of the self-regulatory system and the SEC can be jointly used to efficiently and effectively achieve their common objectives to resolve allegations of audit failure. Similarly, the discipline functions of the SEC and the self-regulatory system overlap with the state boards of accountancy, which are the only authorities that can issue or revoke a license to practice within their jurisdictions. The communication and working relationship opportunities for efficiency and effectiveness that exist between the SEC and the self-regulatory system also exist for their relationship with the state boards of accountancy in resolving allegations of audit failure. For over 70 years, the public accounting profession, through its The Independent Audit independent audit function, has played a critical role in enhancing a Function financial reporting process that facilitates the effective functioning of our domestic capital markets as well as international markets. The public confidence in the reliability of issuers financial statements that is provided by the performance of independent audits encourages investment in securities issued by public companies. This sense of confidence depends on reasonable investors perceiving auditors as independent expert professionals who have neither mutual nor conflicts of interests in connection...
