Excerpt: .the respect of the public for obstetrical care and obstetrics in general will be held in higher esteem by physicians themselves. As a result of all this, there will be fewer stillborn children, fewer mothers sacrificed, and the number of invalids following neglected labour will diminish markedly. Inasmuch as most obstetrical cases must be attended by the general practitioner--and then frequently in communities where no hospital exists--it will become necessary to establish local hospitals where the physician may send his patient to have the Twilight method administered by a nurse or physician trained in this method. When the time of delivery approaches the physician may be notified so that he may deliver the child in the hospital. This seems to me the practical solution of the problem of how the large mass of the population is to receive the benefit of Twilight Sleep, for, of course, it becomes impossible for a man with an active general practice to give the uninterrupted attention to his obstetric cases that the Twilight method demands; and unless continued observation of the patient in Twilight Sleep is carried out by some one accustomed to the technique it is better not to attempt the method at all. This open hospital should come soon to facilitate the demonstration and the widespread dissemination of the knowledge of Dammerschlaf technique; for while the work is being carried on successfully in the hospitals not originally equipped for it, its added burden is carried by...
